

Golden Production Wins Bronze Telly Award

Prestigious Visual Arts Awarded for work on "Nevada Mining - From Pickaxe to GPS"

Golden Productions, an award-winning video production company based in Reno, is proud to announce they have been awarded a Bronze Telly in the 38th Annual Telly Awards for their video series "Nevada Mining - From Pickaxe to GPS."

More than 13,000 entries from around the globe were submitted for this year's awards.

"Nevada Mining" is a four-part series that covers the storied history of the Silver Rush in Nevada and how it shaped and influenced modern mining today. The series was shot over the course of 11 months in several counties throughout the state of Nevada. It was written and directed by Gabe and Dennis Golden and funding was provided by The Nevada Mining Association. The Golden's shot more than 100 hours of video and 60 people interviewed for the series.

"It's truly astonishing how much mining has changed considerably in the past 150 years. It has become such a high tech industry and that's something many people don't realize," said Dennis Golden. "The more we discovered over the course of filming this series about the work and the research that goes into a modern mining operation, the more we wanted to show."

Golden Productions specializes in script development for feature films, documentaries television and online video marketing and handle all location scouting, interviews, direction, script writing, camera, and editing. The company was previously awarded 4 Telly and 4 Gold communicator awards for their work on the PBS series, "Stewards of the Rangeland."
